Weapons of choice : the development of precision guided munitions

Paul G. Gillespie
Tuscaloosa, AL : University of Alabama Press, 2006.

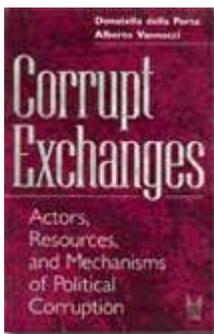

358.1 GIL

New technology created attractive choices and options for America policymakers as well as field commanders, and events in the Arab-Israeli wars, the U.S. raid on Libya, and most dramatically in the first Gulf War created an ever-increasing demand for the precision weapons.

CORRUPCION

Corrupt exchanges : actors, resources, and mechanisms of political corruption

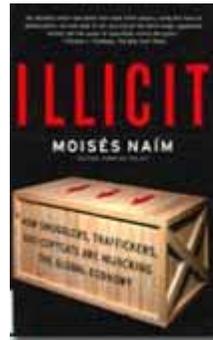

Donatella della Porta and Alberto Vannucci
New York, NY : Aldine de Gruyter, 1999.

364.1 DEL

The authors focus on the more conspicuous Italian case, using a combination of primary research methods, as well as cross-national comparisons. Ultimately, they present a model for analyzing corruption as a network of illegal exchanges, a model that will serve both as a theoretical approach to a political problem bearing on all democratic institutions, and as a warning of a system in peril.

CRIMEN INTERNACIONAL

Illicit : how smugglers, traffickers, and copycats are hijacking the global economy

Moisés Naím
New York, NY : Anchor Books, 2006.

364.135 NAI

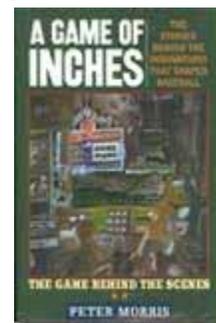

Illuminates the struggle between traffickers and the hamstrung bureaucracies trying to control them. From illegal migrants to drugs to weapons to laundered money to counterfeit goods, the black market produces enormous profits that are reinvested to create new businesses, enable terrorists, and even take over governments. Reveals the inner workings of these amazingly efficient international organizations and shows why it is so hard, and so necessary, to contain them.

Powers of the mind : the reinvention of liberal learning in America

Donald N. Levine
Chicago, IL : University of Chicago Press, 2006.

378.012 LEV

Proposes fresh ways to think about liberal learning with ideas more suited to our times. He does so by defining basic values of modernity and then considering curricular principles pertinent to them. The principles he favors are powers of the mind, disciplines understood as fields of study defined not by subject matter but by their embodiment of distinct intellectual capacities.

FOLKLORE

Jeans : a cultural history of an American icon

James Sullivan
New York, NY :
Gotham, 2007.

687.1 SUL

Tells the story of this amazing garment, from its humble utilitarian origins to its ubiquitous presence in the twenty-first-century global economy. Beginning with the appearance of front-buckled denim pants in nineteenth-century America, Sullivan untangles the legends surrounding the origin of jeans and traces their adoption as work clothing in the West.

The scrapbook in American life

Edited by Susan Tucker [et al]
Philadelphia, PA : Temple
University Press, 2006.

973 SCR

This book is a contribution to cultural studies. Scrapbooking is an undervalued and understudied class of artifacts, where some men, a number of children, and lots of women made it in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries for a variety of reasons: autobiography, learning, or the simple joy of arranging things in a telling and pleasing manner.

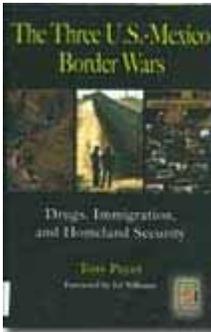

The turkey : an American story

Andrew F. Smith
Chicago, IL : University of Illinois Press, 2006.

641.3 SMI

Food historian Andrew F. Smith's history of Meleagris gallopavo separates fact from fiction, serving as both a solid historical reference and a fascinating general read, and presents the turkey in ten courses, beginning with the bird itself in the wild.

FRONTERA MEXICO-ESTADOS UNIDOS

The three U.S.-Mexico border wars: drugs, immigration, and Homeland Security

Tony Payan
Westport, CT : Praeger Security International, 2006.

363.972 PAY

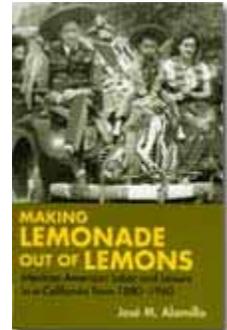

The comprehensive security strategy now in place permeates the three border wars examined in this work: the war on drugs, the war over the enforcement of immigration laws, and the war on terror. This book illuminates the ways in which border residents are coping with the stricter border security environment and how they navigate their daily lives in the face of an increasing number of federal bureaucrats and programs designed to close the border.

HISPANOS

Making lemonade out of lemons: Mexican American labor and leisure in a California town, 1880-1960

José M. Alamillo
Urbana, IL : University of Illinois Press, 2006.

979.4 ALA

Using oral history interviews, extensive citrus company records, and his own experiences in Corona, California, the author argues that Mexican Americans helped lay the groundwork for civil rights struggles and electoral campaigns in the post-World War II era.

Mestizaje : critical uses of race in Chicano culture

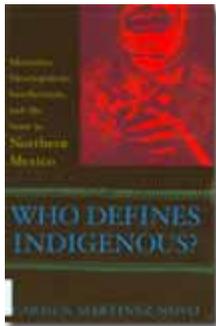

Rafael Pérez-Torres
Minneapolis, MN : University of Minnesota Press, 2006.

305.868 PER

Exploration of the volatility and mutability of racial identities. The author reveals how the concepts and realities of race, historical memory, the body, and community have both constrained and opened possibilities for forging new and potentially liberating multiracial identities.

Who defines indigenous? :
identities, development, intellectuals, and the state in northern Mexico

Carmen Martínez Novo
New Brunswick, NJ :
Rutgers University
Press, 2006.

305.897 MAR

The author draws on her ethnographic research of the Mixtec Indian's migration from the southwest of Mexico to Baja California to show that sometimes the push for indigenous labels is more a process of external oppression than it is of minority empowerment.

A nation by design : immigration policy in the fashioning of America

Aristide R. Zolberg
New York, NY
:Russell Sage Foundation, 2006.

325.73 ZOL

Explores American immigration policy from the colonial period to the present, discussing how it has been used as a tool of nation building and argues that the engineering of immigration policy has been prevalent since early American history.

INMIGRACION

Antonio's gun and Delfino's dream:
true tales of Mexican migration

Sam Quinones
Albuquerque, NM :
University of New Mexico Press, 2007.

305.868 QUI

Quinones has covered the world of Mexican immigrants for the last thirteen years, from Chicago to Oaxaca, Michoacan to Southwest Los Angeles, Tijuana to Texas. Along the way, he has uncovered stories that help illuminate all that Mexicans seek when they come north, how they change their new country, and are changed by it.

INTERNET

The geography of the Internet industry : venture
capital, dot-coms, and local knowledge

Matthew A. Zook
Malden, MA : Blackwell
Pub, 2005.

338.4 ZOO

Analyses the geography of the commercial Internet industry during the dot-com boom. It presents the first accurate map of Internet domains in the world, by country, by region, by city, and for the United States, by neighborhood. Contrary to the predictions of some futurologists, the book demonstrates the extraordinary spatial concentration of the industry and the continued relevance of geography to patterns of economic development in the twenty-first century.

The Long tail : why the future of business is selling less of more

Chris Anderson
New York, NY :
Hyperion, 2006.

658.802 AND

The Long Tail is really about the economics of abundance, an entirely new model for business that is just starting to show its power as unlimited selection reveals new truths about what consumers want and how they want to get it. Using the worlds of movies, books, and music, the author shows how the internet has made possible a new world in which the combined value of modest sellers and quirky titles equals the sales of the top hits.

MERCADOTECNIA

John Bush Jones
Waltham, MA :
Brandeis University
Press, 2006.

782.42 JON

Examines hundreds of tunes in the context of the times. Although a central part of home front popular culture during World War II, war-related and war-inspired songs had never been systematically analyzed or interpreted. The author begins with a look at the contemporary music industry and the astonishing array of songwriters (including amateurs) prior to Pearl Harbor and during the war.

ORGANISMOS INTERNACIONALES

The United Nations in the twenty- first century : management and reform processes in a troubled organization

Marcus Franda
Lanham, MA :
Rowman & Littlefield,
2006.

PERIODISMO

Broadcasts from the Blitz : how Edward R. Murrow helped lead America into war

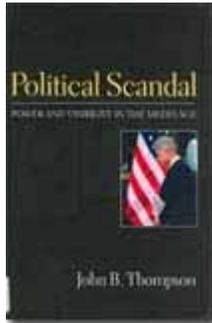

Philip Seib
Washington, DC :
Potomac Books,
2006.

070.4 SEI

Story of courage of a journalist broadcasting live from London rooftops as bombs fell around him and of intrigue, as the machinery of two governments pulled America and Britain together in common cause. Examines Murrow's work and life during this crucial time. It also profiles unsung heroes of those days, such as U.S. ambassador John Winant and Winston Churchill's confidant Brendan Bracken, and villains as well-such as Joseph Kennedy and Charles Lindbergh, who proclaimed that England was doomed.

Political scandal : power and visibility in the media age

John B. Thompson
Cambridge ; Malden,
MA : Polity Press :
Blackwell, 2000.

306.2 THO

Develops a systematic and wide-ranging analysis of the phenomenon of political scandal. The author shows that the rise of political scandal is linked to the changes brought about by the development of communication media, which have transformed the nature of visibility and altered the relations between public and private life.

The war in Iraq and why the media failed us

David Dadge
Westport, CT : Praeger
Publishers, 2006.

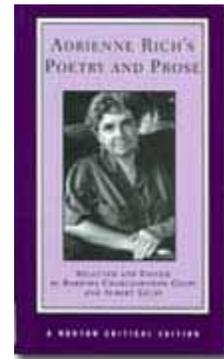

070.4 DAD

This analysis argues that the media should have done a better job of performing its traditional role of skeptic and watchdog, and it examines what went wrong. Explores why the media did not aggressively investigate the claims made by the administration and intelligence agencies.
